MYSTERY OF FRANK M'NALLY'S DEATH NOT SOLVED.

Found Dying From Bullet Wounds in the Early Morning-Little Foundation for Suicide Theory-Woman Friend Hints at Man With the Pistol Habit.

Frank McNally was found dying from bullet wounds in the rooms he occupied over his saloon at Park avenue and North Oxford street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning. Half an hour later he died, refusing to throw any light on how he came to be shot. One of his employees and the physician who had been summoned questioned him, but he refused to say a word about the shooting.

The dead man was good looking, about 35 years old, and was said to be a bachelor. He was engaged to be married to Tomo Hanlon, an actress of minor importance, who recently was in the "Paris by Night" company. She is a grass widow, being separated from her husband, Jules Clu-

McNally's bartender, Alfred Marshall of 122 Nassau street, Brooklyn, went up to McNally's rooms yesterday morning to get the keys. The door was fastened by a spring lock for which Marshall had the key. He found his employer stretched on the floor beside the bed. He was attired in his underclothes only. His face and garments were red from blood.

"Who shot you, Frank?" asked Marshall excitedly.

"Never mind, Al," McNally answered; 'hurry for a doctor and a priest. Get a

These were the last words the man uttered. A few minutes later a priest ar-McNally died as he crossed the

Meanwhile the police at the Flushing avenue station had been notified. Two detectives hurried to the house and they began their inquiry on the theory that murder and robbery had been committed. They knew that McNally had been badly beaten a week ago by a customer wnom he had thrown out of his saloon. He had three rooms in his suite and these were searched, but no pistol was found. The robbery theory was abandoned when the officers found $65.60 and McNally's gold watch on a dresser in the room. The money was the receipts of the day before.

Mangin and Ambulance Surgeon Bliss of Seney Hospital examined the body and found surface evidences of four bullet wounds. There was a hole in the left cheek near the ear and one in the left jaw near the mouth. There was also a wound near the mouth. There was also a wound in the right armpit and another on the middle finger of the right hand.

The police learned that McNally was one of the masher type and further that he was very attentive to Toma Hanlon, who lives with Mrs. M. Ward at 78 Clinton avenue. The young woman had a number of admirers, but the handsome saloon-keeper was the favorite.

Detectives Carney and DeCantillon went to her residence and aroused the landlady. They said they desired to see Miss Hanlon. The latter jumped up, and as soon as she saw the officers, she asked:

"Has McNally been shot? Has he been hurt?"

hurt?"
Carney said
"Yes; but why do you ask?"
"Well, I thought it would happen some day," she answered.
She went on to say that among McNally's customers was a man addicted to the pistol habit and often when drunk this man would amuse himself by firing shots between McNally's feet and those of his customers.
The young woman was taken to the McNally's feet and those of his customers. The young woman was taken to the station house where Capt. Toole' gridironed' her. She answered every question frankly. She told him she had known McNally four years and was engaged to him. He was at her home several hours yesterday afternoon, she said. They were on the most affectionate terms. Her purpose, she announced, was to stop over in Chicago and get a divorce the next time she went West on a professional tour. She said she knew MoNally had rivals, but no envious or bitter ones and she felt certain that he did not kill himself, as he was fairly prosperous and fond of life.

kill himself, as he was fairly prosperous and fond of life. Capt. Toole detained her as a witness. He also arrested Marshall and Giuseppe Cirola, 16 years old, of 40 Spencer street, but merely because he wanted them as witnesses. He was convinced that they knew nothing about the tragedy. Later on all othing about the tragedy. Later on all ree were discharged at the Myrtle avenue court.

It was learned during the day that the shooting occurred about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. A milkman who passed the house at that time heard the shots, but he paid no attention to them.

An autopey was made last evening by Dr. Emil F. Hartung, Coroner Flaherty's physician. It showed that the man had been shot five times; there was a bullet wound in the abdomen that had escaped notice. The bullet that appeared to have pierced the right armpit had entered the side and penetrated the right lung.

Capt. Toole visited the house late in the afternoon and made an examination of the Lenox, Sept. 21.—Malcolm McBurney of Stockbridge and David T. Dana of Lenox are the survivors of match play for the Lenox cup in the annual tournament. This morning McBurney played a close game with S. Frothingham of Lenox, the match being won at the eighteenth hole, when Frothingham's put ran the rim of the cup and rolled out, giving the match to McBurney by 1 up. This afternoon McBurney disposed of A. S. White of Wallaston, the strongest golfer left in the contest, and has practically won the cup. Shaw of Lenox and Hoffman of Harvard are the survivors in the consolation cup event. The results:

Second Round—Lenox cup—Malcolm MacBurney, Stockbridge, beat Samuel Frothingham, Lenox, 1 up; A. S. White, Wallaston, beat F. C. Robertson, Ekwanok, 6 up and 5 to play; P. W. Whittemore, Brookline, beat T. A. Thomson, Lenox, sup and 2 to play; T. D. Dana, Lenox, beat M. M. Singer, Lenox, 1 up. Seminals—Lenox cup—MacBurney beat White, 3 up and 2 to play; Dana beat Whittemore, 1 up. Second Round—Consolation cup—R. J. Flick, Wilkesbarre, beat F. M. Taylor, Worcester, 3 up and 1 to play; B. P. Shaw, Lenox, beat R. F. Phifer, Baltusrol, 3 up and 2 to play; Hoffman beat Palmer, 8 up and 6 to play; Hoffman beat Palmer, 8 up and 6 to play. Hoffman beat Palmer, 8 up and 6 to play.

Capt. Toole visited the house late in the afternoon and made an examination of the room in which McNally was found. He examined the bed and discovered that it had probably been occupied by two persons. He believes a third person entered the room, took McNally by surprise and shot him. He believes, too, since there were no blood stains on the bed linen, that the salconkeeper must have jumped from the bed to defend himself. He had evidently retired for the night.

So far as known Deputy Sheriff John Johnson of 96 North Oxford street was the last person who saw McNally alive. He was in the salcon until 1:30 o'clock, when McNally closed up. Johnson then went to the County Court House, remaining there until 4:30 o'clock. Then he went to a beanery opposite the Borough Hall and stayed there until 4:30 o'clock. The shooting, it is pretty well settled, occurred between 4 and 4:15 o'clock in the morning.

McNally was a left handed man. As two of the bullet wounds were on the left side of his face it was suggested that he might have shot himself. The physician expressed the opinion that no man could shoot himself four times as McNally was shot, and then secrete the weapon.

THIEVES FLED WITHOUT BOOTY. George Pearson and Dave Hunter, the professionals respectively of the Forest Hill and Essex County links, played the first half of their return match yesterday at the former course, breaking all square after Pearson had been 1 up in the morning. Hunter, to the surprise of the Pearson clan, had the longer ball from the tees, but the latter had the better direction. They wind up on the Essex links next Wednesday.

In their first match, which was for $50 a side, Pearson was 3 up at Forest Hill, and, after Hunter had evened matters at Essex, Pearson came away and won by 2 up. This time the match is for $100 a side.

The silk trimmings establishment of Cohen Bros., at 15-19 Manhattan avenue, Williamsburg, was entered early yesterday morning by two burglars who first removed an iron cellar grating from in front of the place and then sawed two holes in the store floor. They selected several thousand dollars worth of silk goods, which they wrapped in paper and dropped through the holes into the cellar, ready for removal. They were seeking more plunder with the aid of candle lights when a man in the street discovered them and told Policeman Lynch of the Stagg street station. fugitives escaped.

Lynch obtained only a meagre description of the burglars, but they are believed to be the same who early last week robbed the store of Abraham Punski, at Manhattan avenue and Boerum street, of silk goods yalued at $3,000.

The stone cutters were not employed under the arbitration agreement, and most of them stayed at work on other jobs. About a week ago, the marble cutters called on the Journeymen Stonecutters' Union either to settle the trouble at the Trinity building or to declare a general strike, with the alternative of the marble cutters declaring their own strike off. The Stonecutters' Union, after emitting a great deal of hot air, responded by calling out a few men.

The marble cutters waited but there was no general strike. Now they have decided to leave the alliance. It is believed that this result has been brought about largely by William P. Mason. With the loss of the marble cutters and a big hole in the ranks of the plasterers' society it is expected that the alliance fight cannot last much longer. A statement was issued last night on behalf of that body, which said in part:

last much longer. A statement was issued last night on behalf of that body, which said in part:

The marble cutters have withdrawn from the siliance and are going back to work. They say they felt that the alliance was doing nothing for them in the way of bringing about a settlement. In other words, they want always to be sure they are on the winning side. The other unions have decided to stand by the alliance. The alliance as a body of labor men is not dependent on individuals or on a single union, otherwise it would be a failure. Men who leave an organized body in an industrial fight are to be classed with the men who leave their country's service in time of war. From the standpoint of the employers, the alliance, in losing William P. Nason, has lost a possible John Mitchell and the employers have gained a conservative man.

The split in the Plasterers' Society has led that body to seek peace. President James Thompson of the Employing Plasterers' Association made this announcement last night:

"Not necessarily so," he replied, "but the old union will have to reorganize and comold union will have to reorganize and completely change its tactics as the first basis of settlement. Michael Stanton, ex-delegate of the Electrical Workers' Union, who was said by Lewis Hardy of the employers' association to have sounded a member of the Electrical Contractors' Association about amalgamating the old and new unions of electrical workers says that he never made such a proposal, and, furthermore, had no authority to de so.

About twenty of the electric crane men refused to accept the cut in their pay and went out, but their places were immediately filled. For a time it was rumored that all the working force would strike because of the decrease, but to-day the sentiment among the men was against such a course.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.-The Washingtons day in another hard fought and exciting Clarkson was invincible for innings, but weakened slightly in the eighth inning, when he hit a batsman and was touched up for three clean singles, scoring three runs and giving the Washingtons their fourth victory of the season against the New Yorks. Although the New Yorks outpatted the locals nearly two to one, Patten proved his superiority over Clarkson by his steadiness and greater effectiveness.

Cassidy's scratch hit, Anderson's error of judgment, Kittredge's sacrifice, Patten's free trip to first and O'Neill's out to Elberfeld, who should have cut Cassidy off at the plate, gave the home team its first run. After one out in the eighth inning, Huelsman breasted one of Clarkson's inshoots for a pass to first and Mullin fouled to Anderson of the second out. Cassidy singled to centre and stole second. Then Donovan poked a single past Elberfeld, who played closs scoring both Huelsman and Cassidy. Donovan reached second on Fultz's throw home, whence he scored on Kittredge's single to right. Clarke was put out of the game for disputing a called ball. The score:

GAME. Twice the New York Nationals stumbled esterday in two lively games with the Cincinatis. In the second they not only tripped did the more timely hitting, and in all-round n particular was frailty in pinch hitting conspicuous hindrance to New York, ten men being left on bases in the seven innings. Bowerman and Mathewson between them made misplays of commission and omission that helped fritter away the first game, and Donlin had his troubles in left field.

Nothing of moment happened in the first game until the second inning, when Mertes showed how centre field should be played. He made a beautiful running catch of been hiding his light under a bushel in left field and that that position has not been played up to the mark by the home club this season. Devlin, who was back in harness after a long lay-off, followed with a neat stop and fling of Steinfeldt's hard jumper. The first hit of the game was made by Gilbert in the second inning but Gilbert was out stealing, Corcoran getting him in spite of a reckless slide. The scarlet hose horde scored once in the third because Mathewson and Bowerman messed things up. Donlin fielded Corcoran's two bagger nicely, but Tommy went to third Harper struck the New York side out in the first inning of the second game, also hit a batsman, made a wild pitch and was bumped for a two bagger by Browne. A fine play by Steinfeldt spoiled New York's scoring chances in the third. Donlin walked and Browne bunted safely, Metiann hit to Harper, who threw to third to force Donlin. The throw was wild, but Steinfeldt reached out and grabbed the ball with one hand.

In the fourth, after Devlin and Gilbert had hit safely, Warner sent a fly to Steinfeldt, which the latter muffed, but Carpenter decided that it was an infield fly and called the batter out. Taylor filed to Seymour, ending a good chance to score. The New Yorks wabbled badly in the fifth. Odwell hit safely, McGann fumbled Steinfeldt's sacrifice and Huggins outfooted a bunt. A base on balls to Schiel forced Odwell home, and Steinfeldt scored on Corcoran's fly to Mertes. Harper was very wild in the sixth, and with the aid of a wild throw by Corcoran filled up the corners. It was up to Donlin, but his best was a grounder to Huggins, and the side was out.

MoGann doubled in the seventh with one out, but was doubled up on Mertes's little projectile to Dolah. Seven innings was the limit of the game by mutual consent. The score:

The Pirates came to life yesterday, played the ball of which they are capable and worsted the Brooklyns in both sections of a double header. In the first game they settled matters without wasting any time. They fell on Cronin vigorously in the first inning and batted out three runs. This was plenty to cinch the game for them, as Leever held the Brooklyns in check at all stages. The fielding was good in both teams. The score:

hammered a two bagger to right in the second inning and came in on Phelps's single. McCormick hit a safety again in the fourth, but was forced by Bransfield. Bransfield took second base on Kruger's out at first, and

HER "SERVICES" TOO VAGUE. Katherine Sawyer Must Explain What She Did for the Late A. E. Wemple.

Katherine Sawyer, who alleges that $1,500

Katherine Sawyer, who alleges that $1,500 is due her for board and lodging from the late Alonzo E. Wemple, who lived at $5 West 180th street, began a suit to recover in the City Court yesterday against Fannie E. Wemple.

In the complaint filed by Howe & Hummel, her counsel, the plaintiff set forth that prior to May 17 last, at Wemple's instance, she "rendered services and furnished the said Alonzo E. Wemple with board and lodging and advanced certain money at the request of Wemple, all of the reasonable value of $1,500." request of Wemple, an or value of $1,500."

Upon demand of a bill of particulars by Mrs. Wemple, Miss Sawyer itemized as follows:

"To services rendered between May, 1903 and May, 1904, $800; board and lodging, same period, $450; money advanced, $250."

Judge Delahanty ruled that Mrs. Wemple is entitled to more particulars, especially is entitled to more particulars, especially as regards the "services rendered." Wemple is said to have left a large estate.
